The term "Futhark" refers to the alphabet used by the Germanic peoples, specifically in Norse and early Scandinavian cultures. This system consists of 24 characters known as runes, each imbued with its own unique symbolism and magical properties. The name "Futhark" is derived from the first six runes of the alphabet: F, U, Þ (Thorn), A, R, and K. Understanding these runes is crucial for anyone looking to harness their power in magical practices.

Runes were not only used for writing but also for divination, healing, and protection.
