writing and speaking abilities are built.

Common Grammar Questions and Answers

Grammar questions often arise due to the complexities and exceptions inherent in the English language. Below are some common grammar questions along with their answers that can help clarify misunderstandings.

Q: What is the difference between "affect" and "effect"?

A: "Affect" is typically used as a verb meaning to influence something, while "effect" is a noun that refers to the result of a change. For example, "The weather can affect your mood," versus "The effect of the weather on your mood can be significant."

Q: When should I use "who" versus "whom"?

A: Use "who" when referring to the subject of a sentence and "whom" when referring to the object. For instance, "Who is going to the party?" (subject) versus "To whom should I address the letter?" (object).

Q: How do I know when to use commas?

A: Commas are used in various situations, including separating items in a list, before conjunctions in compound sentences, and after introductory phrases. For example, "I bought apples, oranges, and bananas," or "After dinner, we went for a walk."

Q: What is a run-on sentence, and how can I fix it?

A: A run-on sentence occurs when two or more independent clauses are joined without appropriate punctuation or conjunctions. To fix it, you can either separate the clauses into distinct sentences or connect them with a conjunction or semicolon. For example, "I love to read I have many books" can be corrected to "I love to read; I have many books."

Q: What are subject-verb agreement rules?

A: Subject-verb agreement means that the subject and the verb must agree in number. For singular subjects, use singular verbs, and for plural subjects, use plural verbs. For example, "She runs every day" (singular) versus "They run every day" (plural).
