Understanding Subject-Verb Agreement

Subject-verb agreement refers to the grammatical rule that the subject of a sentence must agree in number (singular or plural) with its verb. This fundamental aspect of English grammar ensures clarity and coherence in communication. For instance, in the sentence "The cat runs," the singular subject "cat" is correctly matched with the singular verb "runs." Conversely, in "The cats run," the plural subject "cats" corresponds to the plural verb "run."

There are several rules that govern subject-verb agreement. These include:

- Singular subjects take singular verbs: A singular subject requires a singular verb. For example, "She walks to school."
- Plural subjects take plural verbs: A plural subject requires a plural verb. For example, "They walk to school."
- Compound subjects: When two subjects are joined by "and," they take a plural verb. For example, "Tom and Jerry play outside."

- Indefinite pronouns: Certain indefinite pronouns like "everyone" or "each" are considered singular and take singular verbs. For example, "Everyone is invited."
- Collective nouns: Collective nouns can be tricky; they can take either singular or plural verbs depending on whether the group acts as a single unit or as individuals. For example, "The team is winning" versus "The team are arguing among themselves."
