Understanding Hindi and Urdu

Both Hindi and Urdu belong to the Indo-Aryan language family, which is a branch of the larger Indo-European language family. They share a common grammatical structure and a significant portion of their vocabulary. However, the two languages diverge primarily in their scripts and some lexical choices.

Common Roots and Divergence

1. Historical Background:

- Hindi evolved from the dialects spoken in northern India, primarily from Khari Boli.
- Urdu developed under the influence of Persian, Arabic, and Turkish, particularly during the Mughal era.

2. Script Differences:

- Hindi is written in the Devanagari script.
- Urdu uses a modified version of the Persian script, which is written from right to left.

3. Lexical Variation:

- Hindi often incorporates words from Sanskrit.
- Urdu, on the other hand, tends to use more Persian and Arabic words.

These differences create a need for a comprehensive Hindi Urdu dictionary that can cater to speakers and learners of both languages.
